

Hope Installs Digital Screens in Sanctuary

Not only is Hope's new digital sign spreading God's word to the neighborhood, but members and visitors alike will see the words and songs of the service on three large screens in the sanctuary. The screens were first used Sunday August 16. They simply displayed a welcoming message and then displayed illustrations for Pastor Lynn's sermon.

In the future the screens will replace the written service booklets and will display all words and music for the services as well as illustrations and movie clips for sermons.

Members with physical or sight problems will still receive large print notebooks of the service and hymns, but all others will work from the screens.

The three large tv screens were well received by the congregation. One member said, "I feel we are fast becoming a church for the 21st century."
